

Yes...Super Gas Rush has finally started!

If you have friends in secondary school and they can't move from their television sets, then we're guessing they're tuned into the action. Yes, it's the Qualifying Rounds of NGC's Gas Rush Competition airing on Gayelle, The Channel, Mondays from 5-6 p.m. and Tuesdays through Thursday, 6-7 p.m. May 11 - June 4.

If you're wondering why their fingers are crossed, the answer is simple. The questions have got even more difficult and you might even find yourself scratching your head for some of the answers. Don't worry though; you can download the NGC Secondary School Gas Facts Booklet from the NGC website- www.ngc.co.tt and try to answer the questions yourself!

There is a reason behind the suspense and anxiety. NGC's Gas Rush competition has stiffened the game even more. Only sixteen of the thirty-two teams will go to the Final Rounds. The scene at Gayelle is lighted with a red hue and the air waves are filled by loud outbursts from the overjoyed audience sometimes at the edge of their seats or gripping friends' hands in hope of a correct answer. Some students come from as far as Princes Town to support their school mates.

We wish to say a special thank you to the three teams that crossed the seas from our sister isle, Tobago to compete. We were really amazed by the Signal Hill Gas Rush Team.

Witnessing their game they must have got a 'rush' since they were smoking out their answers which earned them an amazing total of 5,800 points.

So calling all Gas Rush enthusiasts, don't touch that remote. Stay tuned to Gayelle and you'll find that learning and fun have never been better paired up as with the NGC Gas Rush Competition.
